The Clinical Practice of Cognitive Therapy 2019-2020
Intensive Training for Mental Health Professionals

The Challenge of Psychotherapy in the Real World

Therapists face many demands these days. Clients want (and deserve) effective treatment for complex problems. Insurance companies ask us to provide short-term therapy and to demonstrate “medical necessity.” Agencies want us to maintain a hefty caseload with high levels of client satisfaction. In addition, we’re expected to be knowledgeable about evidence-based treatment. Many therapists want to cope with these challenges by updating their skills and obtaining advanced clinical training, but they need training that is flexible and focused on clinical practice.

Cognitive Therapy is an evidence-based cognitive-behavioral approach to therapy that is effective with a wide range of problems. The cognitive perspective provides a conceptual framework that makes therapy with complex clients less confusing and frustrating. In addition, cognitive-behavioral techniques provide powerful tools for alleviating current distress and for accomplishing lasting changes.

Intensive Training for Psychotherapists

The Clinical Practice of Cognitive Therapy is an intensive training program that consists of a series of seminars held one day a month for ten months. The seminars provide hands-on training in the application of Cognitive Therapy in clinical practice. They combine lectures and readings with video, demonstrations, case consultation, and practice in the use of cognitive-behavioral techniques. The program is designed for practicing mental health professionals (psychiatrists, psychologists, social workers, counselors, psychiatric nurses, etc.) who can apply the material with their own clients.

This program offers much more than a book or a one-day workshop can provide, including:

- Intensive, hands-on training that you can apply in clinical practice right away
- A flexible schedule – complete the program on your own timetable (even if it takes a few years)
- Lively, engaging faculty who make the class interesting as well as useful
- Texts that focus on the practical application of CBT with a broad range of clients
- Demonstrations of intervention techniques
- Opportunity to try out interventions in your practice and then follow up with the instructors in the next class or via the Internet
- Nationally known faculty who relate new research and innovation to the realities of clinical practice

Certification Program in Cognitive Therapy

Participants in The Clinical Practice of Cognitive Therapy have three options. They can simply participate in the seminars for continuing education credit, they can complete two exams and submit a recording of a therapy session to receive certification in Cognitive Therapy from the Cleveland Center for Cognitive Therapy, or they can use completion of this program in partial fulfillment of the requirements for certification by the Academy of Cognitive Therapy. The Academy of Cognitive Therapy is a non-profit organization that offers international certification in Cognitive Therapy. Successful completion of this program fulfills the academic requirements for certification by the Academy but there are additional requirements for supervised experience and submission of a work sample.

Course Objectives

Fundamentals of Cognitive Therapy with Depression (Oct., Nov., & Dec., 2019)

Participants will be able to explain the essential concepts, techniques, and strategies of Cognitive Therapy and to apply this material in the treatment of depression and suicidality. They will understand the role of cognition in psychopathology and will be able to demonstrate Cognitive Therapy’s approach to developing rapport, structuring the session, using cognitive and behavioral interventions, developing homework assignments, dealing with non-compliance, and preventing relapse.

Cognitive Therapy with Stress & Anxiety Disorders (Jan., Feb., & Mar., 2020)

Participants will be able to modify the treatment strategies covered in the previous term in order to treat stress, adjustment disorders, and anxiety disorders including panic disorder, agoraphobia, obsessive-compulsive disorder, generalized anxiety disorder, and post-traumatic stress disorder.

Cognitive Therapy with Personality Disorders (Apr., May, & June, 2020)

Participants will apply the principles of Cognitive Therapy to the treatment of clients with personality disorders. They will be able to discuss specific treatment strategies and intervention techniques for a number of personality disorders including borderline, paranoid, avoidant, antisocial, obsessive-compulsive, and histrionic personality disorders.

Special Topics (July, 2020)

Participants will explore the application of Cognitive Therapy to areas of particular interest to participants in the 2019-2020 program. Possible topics include Bipolar Disorder, anger, mindfulness-based interventions, CBT in groups, medical applications of CBT, alcoholism and substance abuse, marital and family problems, CBT with children and adolescents, supervision of CBT, etc.

Schedule

The face-to-face section of The Clinical Practice of Cognitive Therapy will meet one Saturday a month, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., starting on Oct. 19, 2019 (10/19, 11/16, 12/7, 1/11, 2/8, 3/14, 4/18, 5/23, 6/20, & 7/10 & 7/11). The final Special Topics term meets Friday evening and all day Saturday. The Distance Education section of the program begins on October 23, 2019 and materials are sent monthly.

Face-to-face participants will receive an audio recording of each class. If you cannot attend a class session, you can complete the class via Distance Education.

For More Information

Visit <https://www.behavioralhealthassoc.com/clinical-practice-cognitive-therapy> where you can read comments by participants, download an evaluation of a recent program, and find answers to frequently asked questions. You can also visit us on Facebook at <https://www.facebook.com/CleveCCT/> or call James Pretzer, Ph.D. at 216 831-2500 x 2.

Location

The face-to-face section will meet at the west side office of the Cleveland Center for Cognitive Therapy at 26777 Lorain Road, North Olmsted, Ohio. Directions will be mailed to participants after the close of registration. A Distance Education option is also available if you prefer to complete the program on your own.

Distance Education

Participate in the intensive training program on your own schedule without traveling away from home. If you choose the Distance Education option, you complete the same readings as in our face-to-face program. Each month you'll download an unedited audio recording of the class. You'll be able to listen to the lectures when it is convenient for you, complete experiential exercises on your own, and ask questions on-line. After you have done the reading and have listened to the month's audio, you will need to complete an on-line post-test in order to apply for continuing education credit.

The Distance Education program covers the same content, costs the same, and may qualify for the same continuing education credit as the face-to-face program. You'll need the ability to connect to the Internet, send and receive email, download files, and listen to mp3 files. You'll also need enough hard drive space for about 150 MB of audio files per month. If you have questions, contact James Pretzer, Ph.D. at 216-831-2500 x 2 or ClinicalPracticeofCT@gmail.com.

Continuing Education Credit
